Writing

Use ChatGPT for advice on creating an argument, forming structure and drafting ideas.

Ask it to...

Suggest outlines for essays.

Give feedback on what to improve on and develop.

Check your grammar and punctuation.

Reformat or restructure for a different audience.

Generate slogans for posters

Suggest areas of improvement

Rephrase what you want to say.

Translate words or phrases, or suggest different words to use

Suggest a title for your essay.

Draft emails or announcements.

Generate lists and prompts.

Create topics, ideas and discussion points

Ways to use it for...

Can give more detailed answers than Google.

Can recommend further reading or make book suggestions

Returns searches in accessible format

Learn something new. Ask it to teach you a new skill or topic.

Good for definitions and translations.

Can give a summary of an article, text or theory.

Can suggest the best searches to get the results

you want.

Searching Q

Explain the ontological argument.

Translate the following into French...

Summarize chapter four of...

What happens in act one of...

What are the major themes in...

"What keywords and phrases can I use to find information on..."

Evaluating

Use ChatGPT to evaluate your work and suggest improvements.

Ask it to...

Give advice: "How should I...?"

Check your work for bias.

Give different perspectives on a subject.

Anticipate problems: what might go wrong if...?

Suggest methods to test a scientific hypothesis

Create study aids and flash cards.

Generate a quiz or test to evaluate your knowledge.

Generate a marking scheme to assess your work.

Summarise your work

ChatGPT can be a useful aid for students that uses existing text taken from the internet, blogs, open access publishing, websites, study essay banks, research texts and much more. It uses probability to complete your request, but it cannot think critically like a human.

Always check it to make sure it makes sense and rephrase it to make your work original!

Create a study routine or timetable to proritise tasks.

Study aid. Copy in your notes and ask to group into topics, highlight keywords or prioritise information.

Make a step-by-step work plan or ask it to finish your plan.